Historical Context

Josep Maria Godes Hurtado was born into the early 20th century Spain, a period marked by political instability that would eventually lead to the dictatorship of Miguel Primo de Rivera in 1923. Born on January 14, 1908, in Barcelona, he grew up during a time when Catalonia experienced significant industrial growth and cultural renaissance, known as Renaixença, which sought to revive and promote Catalan identity and language.

The various addresses in Barcelona where Josep lived reflect the urban expansion and modernization of the city. His movements within Barcelona from 1908 until his death in 1993 coincided with periods of great change, including the Second Spanish Republic (1931-1939), which granted Catalonia a Statute of Autonomy in 1932, only for many of its provisions to be suspended due to the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War in 1936.

Josep's military service during the Spanish Civil War placed him at the center of one of Spain's most tumultuous periods. The war (1936-1939) was a conflict between the Republicans, who were loyal to the democratic Spanish Republic, and the Nationalists, a rebel group led by General Francisco Franco. The war ended with Franco's victory, leading to a long-lasting dictatorship that suppressed political opposition and regional cultures such as Catalonia's.

When Josep married Francesca Güell Llorente in 1968, Spain was still under Franco's rule. Despite the oppressive regime, this era also saw Spain transition from autarky to an increasingly liberalized economy, experiencing significant economic development and integration with Western Europe, particularly after the Stabilization Plan of 1959.

Josep passed away in 1993, just three years after Spain joined the European Community in 1986, marking its full integration into the European political and economic landscape. His lifetime spanned some of the most critical events in Spanish history, from monarchy to republic, civil war, dictatorship, and finally to democracy following Franco's death in 1975.

Last Name Origins

The surname Godes is likely of Germanic origin, derived from the personal name 'Gode', which itself comes from the Germanic word 'god' meaning 'good' or 'godly'. It may have been a nickname for a person who was good-natured or pious. Over time, this personal name evolved into a family name. The surname could also be locational, coming from someone who lived by an area known as 'Godes', though specific locations with this exact name are not well-documented.

The surname Hurtado is of Spanish origin and is considered to be a patronymic surname, which means it derives from the first name of the father of the initial bearer. In this case, Hurtado is believed to come from the medieval personal name 'Furtado', a variant of 'Fortunato', meaning 'fortunate' or 'blessed'. This name was popular in Spain during the Middle Ages due to Saint Fortunatus, a 6th-century bishop. As surnames became hereditary, the name Furtado would have morphed into Hurtado, indicating 'son of Furtado'.

Consistency Issues

1. The name 'Mercedes' appears as 'Mercé' in source ^[2].
2. There are discrepancies in the birth dates for Rosa Pujol Pont (nacida Godes Hurtado) between sources ^[1] and ^[2]. Source ^[1] states she was born on July 6, 1899, while source ^[2] lists her birth date as July 3, 1899.
